En ponchadura que se presentará en 2019 ante el Gobierno con cargo a la campaña de la oposición para perder la gubernatura de Puebla ha generado malestar en el próximo Gobernador, Miguel Ángel Mancera, quien dijo que no le gustaría tener que recurrir a los servicios de Fiscalía para "conseguir que se atraiga la responsabilidad". Durante un encuentro celebrado en la Subsecretaría de Gobierno de la Nación, el gerente de Gobierno, Eduardo Ochoa, pidió disculpas al Gobierno de los hechos que se registraron en la noche del miércoles pasado en la capital de la entidad, cuando policías federales disidentes, presuntamente cerca de los servicios jurídicos de la Fiscalía de Puebla, comenzaron a bajar a dos abogados y a una funcionaria del Departamento de Seguridad Pública. Ochoa dijo que la situación ha generado un "problema muy grave" que es "difícil de resolver", ya que los hechos se consideran graves porque se trata de servicios jurídicos que están en posesión de la propia Fiscalía y no de la gente que administra la Fiscalía, pero agregó que no puede tolerar ese tipo de hechos, ya que representa una "insulta" a la institución. Y es que, según Ochoa, lo que pasó de la noche del miércoles pasado al jueves pasado no tiene explicación, por lo que aclaró que la Fiscalía se hará cargo de dar solución a la situación, ya que se encuentra a "cabo de las personas que la administran". Y dijo que los responsables son los oficiales quienes recibieron la llamada del presidente
