Interesting observation. After your 1st post got deleted, I looked at the un-deleted version. I did not see the desired information in that version, but I looked into the "mistake" and noticed that your post was successful. You could have still gotten that info in the deleting version, and you did not, which means that you were not really missing information. [I am a moderator, and he has good facts, but I would not want to see it published. The problem is that he did not see the deleted post. Silly human error...] Concerning the download, you basically would not miss anything if you could only download for free. This might be different in some countries. But I still think that it is possible that you made a search of the correct terms. What you wrote: Have you tried another downloader, like BitTorrent? And that is the problem. Read this post: Spam on BitTorrent is heavily punished. If you are going to make a new public torrent, wait 24 hours before releasing it. And now? You wrote: ... and bittorrent is the only way to get it In that case, you are not trying to download it, you are trying to share it. Which means that you have no access to the private torrent tracker. I know that it is not fair to repost the same information, because you are writing about your original posting, but: The problem is that this is all the data you can gather from the information that you provided. And everything else would be, to put it bluntly, spam. What I am trying to say is that if you want to see a difference, you would need to add more information. And about the author: ... I'm looking for the version that contained it, not work... If you look, you can see that the mentioned error happened to you. Also, you could delete your post, because you said that you found the correct version. Q: Oracle and Server Ver 10.2.0.4.0 takes more time to process an SQL when it has a large amount of records I have a large SQL query which takes more time to process. I wanted to find out whether it is the SQL or the Oracle version which is to blame. The SQL I used is as follows : select *

The purpose of this study was to compare the pain intensity of children to that of adults in the evaluation of post-operative pain associated with molar extraction in the same sample of children and to assess the duration of pain after molar extraction. A sample of 45 children (6-12 years) and 40 adults (18-25 years) were selected from children on dental hospital waiting lists in a convenience sample of one pediatric hospital and one adult dental hospital. Children were treated for one molar extraction. Adult participants were treated for a one third molar extraction. Pain was measured using the Face, Leg, Activity, Cry, and Consolability (FLACC) scale at 0, 5, 10, 15, and 30 min, and at 6 and 24 h. Data were evaluated using Friedman's tests and the Wilcoxon signed rank test. The mean pain score for adults was significantly lower than that of children at the 5-min (p
